

WMUR.com

Recycled Percussion Raises Money For Food Program

Bow High School Student Organizes Concert For Senior Project

POSTED: 10:52 pm EST December 16, 2009

BOW, N.H. -- Recycled Percussion performed before a packed auditorium at Bow High School on Wednesday night for a good cause.

Check Out WMUR's Holiday Section

The event raised money for the Capital Region Food Program.

The event was organized by Bow High School senior Doug Piroso as part of his senior project. He has been volunteering for the food program since he was 7, and is a longtime fan of the band.

"I just decided to combine the two and thought it would be a great donation toward the capital region," Piroso said.

Piroso estimated the concert raised almost $4,000. After graduation, he said he'll be attending Keene State College with plans to become a teacher.

Previous Stories:

- September 21, 2009: Tickets Snapped Up For Free Recycled Percussion Show
- September 16, 2009: NH Band Comes In Third On Talent Competition
- September 14, 2009: NH Percussion Group Prepares For 'Talent' Finals

Tell Us More: E-mail WMUR your tips and story ideas.

Copyright 2009 by WMUR. All rights reserved. This material may not be published, broadcast, rewritten or redistributed.